

This past Friday at Penner was an inservice in the morning and we split into two groups, some children went to the play structure and another group went to the back with Maripearl and I (Alexis). The day before some children and I started building a snow fort and they wanted to expand it, all the children worked together, some started to work on the foundation and building the walls and some on the interior aspects. Children used their hands, shovels, and snow block molds to build everything and they built a sofa, TV, coffee table, side tables with lamps, book shelves with books, laptop, kitchen table, fridge, dining table, bed rooms. We took a break for lunch and during quiet time, children came up with some more ideas and they planned out what areas they would work on in the afternoon and they started making design ideas for the fort. After quiet time, we played a game of Jeopardy that Emma planned for all the children. We split into two teams, Emma came up with really great questions and it was a lot fun. Afterwards, we went back outside and saw that the warm weather had taken its toll and half of the fort had melted, the children did not let that stop them and they again started to work together and thought of new design ideas. Unfortunately, I did not get photos of the first fort but the ones below are the second fort, the children have already started planning out ideas for next winters fort, it was a great day and it was so fantastic to see all the children working together, sharing ideas, problem solving, and paying such attention to detail in all of their designs.

Before and after of the flag.

Living room.

TV on the stand and coffee table.

Bookshelf with books.

Side table with lamps.

Laptop

Categories were Movies, Books, Teachers, and Random as well each team had a bonus question worth 2000 points.

